GEORGE BLOOD BOX SETS OF 78 RPMS

Audio archivist Blood has been obsessively uploading multiple takes of 78 rpm singles and boxed-sets for a few years now. Many are housed in the Boston Museum. Here are a few of the boxes, glorious scratchiness intact.

https://archive.org/details/78_a-duke-ellington-panorama_duke-ellington-and-his-famous-orchestra-ellington-miley-d_gbia0003362

“This is a box set of four Duke Ellington 78s containing a total of eight songs released in March of 1943 on Victor Records. The recording features Ellington’s Famous Orchestra of well-known players like saxophonist Otto Hardwicke, clarinetist Barney Bigard, trumpet player Bubber Miley, and many more.

The songs on here are out of order, but the correct order can be seen on the box’s cover.

The first song “Delta Serenade” is a groove while “Dusk” is deeper, slower, more intimate. “East St. Louis Toodle-oo” is darker and a bit more bluesy at fist with a gravely trumpet sound, but the tempo swings back and forth, picking up and allowing the tune to become brighter at parts. “Mood Indigo” is, just like the title suggests, moody. With a twinkling piano, the tune is slow and gentle. “Ring Dem Bells” is loud, cheery, danceable, and full of ringing bells and swirling brass solos. And the bright “Stompy Jones” easily flows suit with its instrumental call and response. “The Mooche” and “Warm Valley” are cool and slow, and “Warm Valley’s” piercing saxophone solos end the set sweetly.”

Once they got their movie community going in the 60's, Canada produced a bunch of nice short films and documentaries for television. Some of these wound up on public TV in the US, as well as in classrooms for educational purposes. 143 short films of live action and animation, non-fiction and fiction, going back to the b/w 60's, including:

A tale of loneliness, love, and death involving a farmer, his wife, and their bachelor neighbor during a snowstorm."

Wobbly music soundtracks kind of detract, but these are both nicely done, like mini Hallmark Hall of Fame episodes.

I wouldn't download these due to copyright considerations but they must know they're on IA the past year or so they've been up. BBC should just allow IA to stream them like they do other copyrighted content, like Pacifica interviews.

Droll lust-triangle put Ayckbourn on the theatrical map. It's not the one with original star Tom Conti that ran on PBS America though.

<https://archive.org/details/AsTimeGoesBySeries1>

Charming romantic comedy series made Judi Dench a star in the US due to heavy rotation of this show on PBS. 2 and 3 also avail; was recorded for radio in mid-90's with all but the original Alistair performing. Not as good as the TV version, which relied a lot on reaction shots from the various characters.
